

What is claimed is:

Claims 1-2 canceled.

3. (Previously presented). A backrest comprising:

an endless main frame including a groove defined in a side thereof and extending along an entire length thereof, the groove being delimited by a bottom wall and an inner peripheral wall having an endless end face; a mesh fixed to the endless end face of the inner peripheral wall delimiting the groove; a decorative frame mounted to the side of the endless main frame and covering the groove and the endless end face of the main frame; and a covering member covering the decorative frame wherein the bottom wall delimiting the groove has a plurality of fixing holes defined therein, the decorative frame having a plurality of holes, with a plurality of fasteners respectively extending through the holes of the decorative frame and the fixing holes of the bottom wall delimiting the groove.